Start date: September 2026

We are looking for a teacher who is passionate about science teaching. The ability to teach biology to GCSE and A level would be an advantage.

The Science Faculty at John Mason School is research informed and has developed a knowledge rich curriculum offer. The team are dedicated to the principle that, if taught well, all students can be academically successful. Leaders in the faculty work to ensure positive staff wellbeing and manageable workload, for example, our curriculum plans are fully resourced, and we run centralised detentions.

Applications are invited from reflective, disciplined, motivated and inspiring practitioners. The successful candidate will understand principles of a knowledge rich curriculum and have an understanding of relevant areas of cognitive science. They will be committed to personal development and will be well supported to improve as a teacher.

The successful candidate will be:

- Passionate about their subject; able to inspire and motivate students and staff.
- Committed to ensuring all students reach their potential.
- Disciplined able to work effectively as part of the team.
- A role model for our students and staff.
- Committed to professional development

We will offer you:

- A comprehensive program of professional development
- The satisfaction of being part of a friendly, supportive and reflective team
- Well-resourced schemes of learning that will reduce workload
- Students who have a desire to achieve and respect the school's expectations.
- Excellent care and support for all staff.

If you would like more information about the faculty, email Dr Richard Marsh, Director of Science
