- Resourceful – encouraging curiosity, creativity and independent thinking so that pupils and staff approach challenges with confidence.
- Resilient – developing perseverance and determination so that setbacks become opportunities for growth and learning.

Together these values drive our commitment to 'Success for All', ensuring that every pupil, regardless of background or circumstance, is supported to achieve their full potential.

Why Teach at Hales Valley?

Teaching at Hales Valley means joining a Trust where people matter, ambition is shared and inclusion is lived every day.

Our schools are places where pupils and staff alike are supported to belong, thrive and achieve. We believe that when individuals feel that they truly belong within a community, they develop the confidence to thrive, and when they thrive, they are able to achieve their full potential.

Our values of Respectful, Resourceful and Resilient underpin everything we do and shape the culture of our schools. These values guide how we learn together, how we support one another and how we prepare pupils for life beyond school.

Across our schools you will find environments where pupils are known, valued and supported, and where staff are trusted and empowered to make a meaningful difference. Great schools are built by great people, and we are committed to creating a culture where teachers feel professionally supported, valued and able to grow.

This ensures that every pupil has the opportunity to feel that they belong, develop resilience and confidence, and achieve ambitious outcomes.

Teaching at Hales Valley

We invest significantly in professional development so that every member of staff can grow, refine their practice and progress in their career. When teachers feel supported, valued and confident in their practice, they are able to create the classroom environments where pupils flourish. Being Well at Hales Valley

A Trust That Values Its People – Head. Heart. Hands.

At Hales Valley, we are deeply committed to the wellbeing of our entire community. Our Being Well Strategy is built on a holistic model – Head, Heart and Hands – ensuring that mental health, physical health and wider life opportunities are understood, prioritised and actively supported across all seven schools. Whether for staff or pupils, we aim to create environments where people feel cared for, valued and equipped to thrive.

Staff & Workforce Wellbeing

Staff wellbeing is woven into every aspect of our work. Mental health support is embedded across the Trust, with leaders fostering a culture of care and all staff completing accredited Understanding Mental Health training as part of their induction. Pastoral teams receive youth mental health first aider training, and everyone has access to Vivup, our Employee Assistance Programme. Staff voice plays a genuine role in shaping our approach: our annual workload survey informs real decisions, and an open-door culture ensures colleagues feel comfortable speaking to leaders about their wellbeing.

Our People Strategy sets clear expectations for sustainable working practices, ensuring staff feel supported both professionally and personally. Each term includes a designated “no meetings” week, and leaders provide clear deadlines to help colleagues manage workload effectively. PPA is protected, regularly timetabled and may be taken at home by agreement, while scheduled send after 6pm reduces out-of-hours pressure.

In addition to these structures, colleagues benefit from a unique family-friendly offer: staff who work in our Trust are able to choose one of our schools for their child to attend, giving families stability, flexibility and a direct connection between home and school life. We also show appreciation through meaningful actions: long service awards with days in lieu and benefit from free wrap around care (where it is offered), time in lieu for leading after-school clubs, and thoughtful hospitality such as paid dinners during parents’ evenings and refreshments on INSET days. Our flexible working policy and menopause support ensure that all colleagues feel understood and supported at every stage of life.

Pupil Wellbeing

Pupil wellbeing is central to our Head, Heart and Hands model. Through a strong emphasis on mental health and access to learning, schools promote environments where children feel safe, supported and ready to learn. Physical health is championed through high-quality PE and sport, inclusive opportunities for SEND and disadvantaged pupils, and a Trust-wide programme of competitive sport and clubs that encourage active lifestyles.

Beyond physical and mental health, pupils benefit from rich enrichment opportunities that promote personal development, life skills and a love of learning. Skillsbuilder is embedded across all schools with trained champions ensuring consistent delivery. Forest and Farm School provision offers weekly outdoor learning led by trained staff, giving pupils hands-on experiences that build confidence and resilience. Every year, children meet a range of professional role models, helping them develop aspirations, understand future career pathways and broaden their sense of possibility.

Teaching at Hales Valley Trust

A Place to Grow. A Place to Lead. A Place to Belong.

Teaching at Hales Valley Trust means joining a community where your professional growth, wellbeing and expertise genuinely matter. We believe teaching is both a craft and a profession, one that requires reflection, collaboration and continuous investment. That belief sits at the heart of everything we do.

Our vision is simple: Success for All. Success for every child. Success for every member of the workforce. Success for every school. Rooted in our shared values of Respect, Resourcefulness and Resilience, we create an environment where professionalism is nurtured, ambitions are supported and every colleague feels empowered to make a difference. At Hales Valley, we develop confident, expert teachers who are supported, valued and trusted to shape education both within our schools and across the wider sector.

Our culture is built on professional trust and a strong sense of collective responsibility. While each school retains its individual identity and community voice, all are united by shared approaches that strengthen teaching and learning. You will find a culture of openness, high expectations balanced with care, and professional dialogue that is grounded in evidence and guided by integrity. Staff voice informs decisions, shapes development priorities and helps us continually refine our practice.

Teachers across our Trust contribute to meaningful, engaging work that extends beyond their own classrooms.

This includes:

- Trust-wide working groups
- curriculum working groups
- strategy working groups linked to our people strategy, well-being strategy and sustainability strategy
- book clubs and reading communities
- structured consultation processes that ensure every colleague has opportunities to influence and innovate.

For example, when our Trust writing curriculum was developed, it was shaped with the expertise of classroom practitioners across all our schools. We believe the strongest teaching comes from empowered professionals, and we create the structures to ensure that expertise informs the way we work.

At Hales Valley, your voice matters. Your development matters. And your impact matters. This is a Trust where teachers can achieve, belong and thrive.

Professional Development

Aligned with the Best Available Evidence

At Hales Valley, professional development is designed with purpose, precision and integrity. Leaders across the Trust ensure that every developmental opportunity is rooted in the best available research and evidence, drawing on high-quality research and expert practice from both within and beyond our schools. We view training as a coherent, carefully sequenced learning strategy that is sustained over time and closely aligned to curriculum priorities. Our aim is simple, to continually strengthen classroom practice in ways that have a meaningful impact on pupils' outcomes.

This approach is brought to life through structures that support ongoing growth. Instructional coaching is embedded across our schools, ensuring teachers receive regular, targeted feedback that helps them refine and master their practice.

Teaching WalkThrus underpin a shared language of instructional excellence across the Trust, while Steplab modules, for early career stage teachers, provides evidence-based learning grounded in the science of how pupils learn best. IRIS Connect enables deliberate practice and reflective teaching, allowing colleagues to review, refine and strengthen their approaches. Trust-wide curriculum handbooks codify subject expertise, ensuring clarity, consistency and high-quality guidance for staff at every stage of their career. Our NPQs are fully facilitated, so that learning is not only theoretical but applied directly to each school's context, ensuring genuine school and classroom impact.

At every level, professional development is purposeful, structured and focused on what matters most: improving outcomes for children through excellent teaching.

The logo for IRIS CONNECT consists of the word "iris" in a lowercase, white, sans-serif font, followed by the word "CONNECT" in a white, uppercase, sans-serif font, all contained within a blue rectangular background.

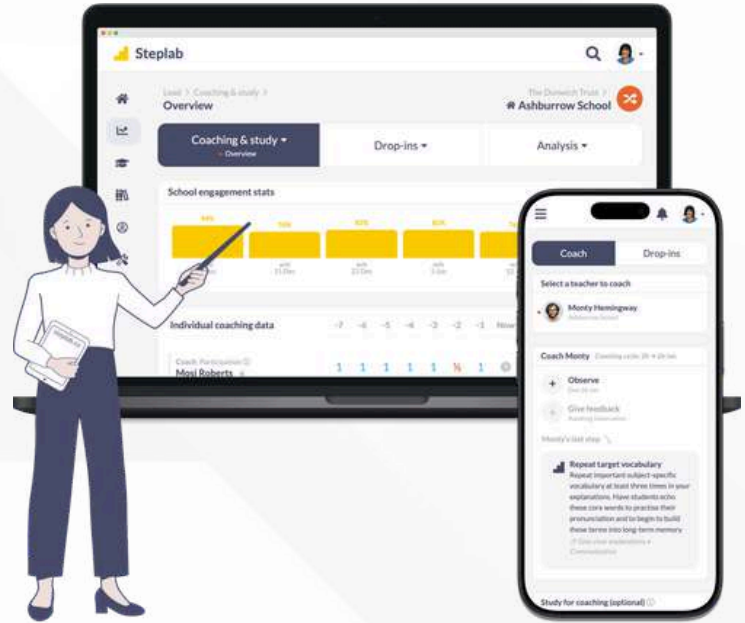

Early Career Development

A Structured and Supported Start

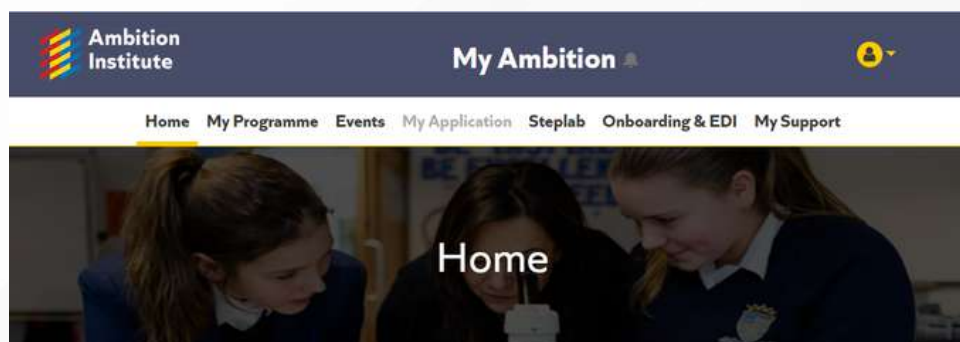

For Early Career Teachers, we provide a highly structured and supportive start through our two-year induction programme grounded in the Early Career Framework. Delivered in partnership with Ambition Institute, this programme gives ECTs a carefully designed curriculum that builds expertise step by step, ensuring their development is steady, manageable and impactful. ECTs benefit from weekly, and later fortnightly, instructional coaching, enabling them to practise, reflect and make sustained improvements. They receive protected time with a 10% timetable reduction in Year 1 and 5% in Year 2, alongside structured self-study modules and Trust-wide conferences and clinics that strengthen subject knowledge, pedagogy and professional confidence.

Mentoring follows a precise identify–learn–improve cycle that ensures every ECT receives tailored support linked directly to their needs and goals. This structured approach helps ECTs build strong habits, deepen their subject knowledge and embed effective teaching practices from the very beginning of their career. Feedback from ECTs across the Trust consistently highlights the value of protected development time, the strength of weekly mentor support and the opportunities for collaboration with peers across Hales Valley. They appreciate the balance we provide between professional challenge and strong support for wellbeing.

Leaders across the Trust are committed to ensuring that those at the start of their teaching journey receive high-quality professional development that sets them up for success. Our approach ensures that ECTs enter the profession with confidence, clarity and the expertise to make a meaningful difference in their classrooms from day one.

Developing Curriculum Expertise

At Hales Valley Trust, teachers are supported to become confident curriculum specialists who benefit from well-sequenced content, clearly defined end points, and coherent progression models that help pupils build knowledge securely over time. By using shared knowledge organisers and consistent structures, staff can focus their energy on presenting subject matter clearly, modelling concepts effectively, scaffolding learning deliberately, and checking pupils' understanding systematically, rather than recreating curriculum materials. This ensures that teaching is purposeful, precise and designed to help pupils know more and remember more over time.

Professional dialogue is a strong feature of our approach. Regular cross-school moderation strengthens teachers' subject knowledge and supports accurate, consistent understanding of standards, enabling colleagues to identify misconceptions and adapt teaching responsively. Shared review processes support teaching that is underpinned by secure subject knowledge and help ensure classroom practice enables pupils to apply learning fluently and meaningfully. This collaborative approach gives teachers the confidence and clarity to refine and strengthen their practice as part of a supportive professional community.

Our assessment systems are deliberately aligned so that teachers work within a framework that brings clarity rather than complexity, allowing them to understand pupils' next steps and adjust teaching in ways that genuinely support progress. Technology is used with purpose to enhance learning, not complicate it. Tools such as CENTURY AI, Star Reader, Accelerated Reader, Times Tables Rock Stars, Language Angels and The Write Stuff help strengthen retrieval, fluency and vocabulary development. These platforms streamline tasks and elevate the quality of teaching, ensuring teachers' time is spent on responding to pupils' needs rather than managing administrative load.

Our approach to teaching and curriculum reflects the belief that pupils thrive when learning is shaped by evidence-informed practice, strong subject expertise, and instruction that helps every learner access the curriculum successfully, including those with additional needs. Through coaching, high-quality professional development and shared structures, we provide teachers with the knowledge, tools and time needed to deliver exceptional education. At Hales Valley Trust, curriculum expertise is nurtured and strengthened through support, clarity and shared professional wisdom, ensuring every teacher is equipped to help every child succeed.

Renaissance

Coaching, Supervision & Reflective Practice

A Culture of Supportive, Developmental Improvement

At Hales Valley, we are committed to creating a culture in which every member of staff feels supported to grow, reflect and continually refine their practice. Our approach to professional development is grounded in the belief that improvement should be developmental rather than judgemental, and this is underpinned by Dylan William's principles of formative, continuous improvement. As he reminds us,

"...after all, if we create a culture where every teacher believes they need to improve, not because they are not good enough, but because they can be even better, there is no limit to what we can achieve."

This belief aligns closely with our own view that coaching helps us see our practice more clearly so we can take deliberate steps to improve it. We aim to provide clarity, ensuring that teachers can focus on what matters most: delivering excellent teaching and supporting pupils to thrive.

Central to this culture is our emphasis on coaching, supervision and reflective practice. Instructional coaching is prioritised, allowing staff to engage in meaningful, ongoing development with real impact. Professional dialogue is a routine part of daily practice across the Trust, supported by opportunities for team teaching and cross-school observation. Tools such as IRIS-supported reflection and Teaching WalkThrus help ensure that improvement remains practical, visible and embedded in the classroom. At Hales Valley, the focus is always on reflection and growth.

As part of our People Strategy, we ensure that every member of staff has access to regular supervision or coaching appropriate to their role. These protected meetings offer space for reflection, development and professional thinking.

We also place high importance on supporting colleagues with safeguarding responsibilities. Designated DSLs receive dedicated supervision, and supervision slots are available for staff across our schools, recognising the emotional and professional demands of this critical work.

Hales Valley is a Trust where people are valued, supported and empowered. Through coaching, clarity and collaborative reflection, we create an environment where staff can develop confidently, deliver high-quality teaching and enjoy long, fulfilling careers within our community.

Inclusive Practice & Specialist Support

Expert Guidance, Clear Systems and a Trust-wide Commitment to Inclusion

At Hales Valley, inclusion is the culture that shapes everything we do. Our schools are places where every pupil is seen, heard and valued, and where belonging is the foundation for learning. We believe that when pupils feel that they truly belong, they gain the confidence to thrive, and when they thrive, they are able to achieve. This belief sits at the heart of our work across the Trust: every pupil should belong, thrive and achieve.

Ofsted-Recognised Inclusive Practice

“There is a clear system in place to identify pupils with SEND. Staff receive training to meet the needs of any pupils requiring additional support. The school effectively collaborates with external professionals to identify the next steps for the most complex pupils. As a result, pupils with SEND achieve and participate well in this inclusive school.”

Lutley Primary School

“The school ensures pupils with SEND get effective support and that they are involved in the full life of the school. A very small number of pupils with the most complex SEND benefit from a bespoke provision. This ‘Sunflowers’ provision is highly effective. The school tracks pupils with SEND to ensure that they are making progress.”

Priory Primary School

“Pupils with special educational needs and/or disabilities continue to benefit from expert support. Needs are identified accurately and the school’s inclusive ethos means no one is left out. Indeed, staff find ways to show everyone they are special and valued. Whether pupils need help with learning, their feelings or behaviour, this school provides for them. This is a distinctive feature of the school.”

Woodside Primary School and Nursery

Belong

We prioritise creating school communities where every pupil feels they belong. This is visible in the relationships we build, the language we use and the environments we create. Pupils see themselves reflected in the curriculum, displays and wider school life. Diversity is celebrated as a strength, and respect and empathy underpin interactions between pupils and adults. Teachers play a key role in building this sense of belonging by creating classrooms where pupils feel confident to contribute, share their ideas and develop their voice.

Thrive

When pupils feel secure and valued, they are able to thrive academically, socially and emotionally. Across our schools, staff work to understand pupils’ individual needs and learning profiles so that teaching can be responsive and supportive. Behaviour is understood through a relational and developmental lens, recognising that behaviour communicates need. Staff are supported through training in inclusive and trauma-informed practice so that they can respond with insight, empathy and effective strategies. Our aim is to create environments where pupils develop resilience, confidence and independence, equipping them with the skills for lifelong learning.

Achieve

We hold high expectations for every pupil and believe that all pupils can achieve when barriers to learning are removed. Adaptive teaching, targeted support and carefully planned curriculum pathways ensure that pupils are able to access learning and make strong progress. Inclusion at Hales Valley is about enabling pupils to succeed across all areas of school life, academically, socially and personally. Success for us is not defined only by outcomes, but also by confidence, participation, friendships and opportunity.

Specialist Provision and Expert Support

A key strength of our Trust is the integration of specialist expertise within our mainstream schools. Across the Trust, we host local authority SEND bases and a Pupil Learning Centre, ensuring specialist support and resources are embedded within our communities. This means teachers benefit from working alongside experienced professionals who support pupils with a range of needs. Teachers have access to:

- specialist SEND expertise and strong inclusion leadership
- multi-agency support including speech and language therapy, educational psychology and mental health services
- targeted interventions and personalised learning approaches
- clear systems for identifying and removing barriers to learning early

This network of support ensures that teachers can focus on delivering high-quality teaching, while knowing that specialist guidance is always available.

Investing in inclusive expertise

We invest significantly in professional development so that all staff feel confident supporting diverse needs. Training across the Trust focuses on:

- adaptive and inclusive teaching
- trauma-informed practice
- communication and language development
- restorative and relational behaviour approaches
- removing barriers to learning

Our aim is simple: every adult in our schools feels confident and capable in helping every pupil belong, thrive and achieve.

A community built on belonging

Working at Hales Valley means joining a Trust where relationships matter. We work closely with families, communities and external partners to ensure that pupils are supported both in school and beyond it. You will find schools where:

- staff collaborate and support one another
- families are valued partners in pupils' learning
- leadership prioritises wellbeing, belonging and opportunity
- pupils are confident, respectful and proud of who they are

Inclusion at Hales Valley is not just about meeting needs, it is about creating a community where every pupil and every member of staff belongs, thrives and achieves.

Talent Development and Leadership Pathways

A Trust That Values Its People – Growing the Next Generation of Leaders

At Hales Valley, leadership development is a strategic, proactive approach to identifying emerging talent, ensuring that colleagues at every stage of their career feel recognised, supported and encouraged to grow. Succession planning is intentional and forward-looking, with leaders mapping leadership capacity across schools to ensure stability, opportunity and excellence for the future.

Professional development is closely matched to both career stage and individual aspiration. Through professional development conversations, coaching and regular dialogue, staff are supported to explore their strengths and ambitions. Emerging leaders are offered opportunities aligned with Trust priorities, enabling them to build experience in a purposeful, supported way. Appropriate professional development is also encouraged, funded and embedded in practice, so colleagues can apply new learning directly within their roles. This is set out in a professional development pathway.

Growing Talent With Purpose Across Hales Valley

Leaders take a strategic, proactive approach to identifying talent, ensuring that staff who aspire to leadership, or who demonstrate early leadership behaviours, are nurtured and prepared for their next step. To support this, we gather rich insight through an annual aspirations survey which invites colleagues to indicate their interest in progression, new responsibilities or opportunities beyond their current role or school.

Leaders actively talent-spot individuals who show leadership potential, matching them carefully to opportunities that will stretch, challenge and develop their skills. Secondments across the Trust provide valuable experience, helping us retain talented staff while building leadership capacity across schools. Coaching and supervision structures further strengthen leadership behaviours and confidence, while NPQ pathways are supported and designed to translate learning into meaningful Trust-wide impact through implementation projects and professional networks.

Middle leadership development receives particular attention within our strategy. Colleagues access training in subject and phase leadership, moderation leadership and curriculum design, and benefit from cross-Trust networks that enable them to learn from practice across different school contexts. This prepares leaders to drive improvement with clarity and confidence. Succession planning is equally proactive: leadership capacity is built deliberately and thoughtfully so the Trust remains stable, forward-looking and prepared for future growth.

Leadership Aspirations

Aspiring middle leaders are supported through structured experiences that help them understand the realities of leadership before stepping into formal roles. This includes opportunities for leadership shadowing, coaching conversations focused on leadership competencies, leading improvement projects and participating in Trust-wide working groups. They also gain exposure to moderation and quality assurance processes, ensuring they are genuinely prepared.

Developing middle and senior leaders benefit from tailored professional learning. Middle leaders receive support in curriculum design and implementation, assessment and moderation leadership, team leadership, coaching and strategic school improvement. Senior leaders extend their skills further through cross-school experience, system-level improvement work, strategic mentoring and Trust-wide leadership responsibilities.

As a result, many of our leaders have progressed internally. Promotion from within is not accidental; it is part of our long-term strategy. Strong leadership pipelines ensure continuity, stability and shared values across the Trust, while giving staff confidence that they can build long, fulfilling careers at Hales Valley.

Opportunities Beyond Your Classroom

At Hales Valley, being part of a Trust means your career is not limited to a single school. We provide rich opportunities for colleagues to broaden their professional experience, contribute to wider improvement work and grow into roles that extend well beyond their own classrooms. This wider landscape of collaboration is one of the great strengths of working within a multi-school community.

Colleagues have regular opportunities to observe practice across other settings, enabling them to learn from diverse contexts and bring back ideas that strengthen their own teaching. Working beyond a single school is valued and encouraged, whether through contributing to Trust-wide working groups, curriculum development projects or leading initiatives that benefit multiple schools. These opportunities build confidence, deepen expertise and help staff understand the broader picture of effective school improvement.

Leadership and professional development are enhanced through facilitating training for others, engaging in curriculum innovation and sharing best practice across schools. Staff often support system-wide improvement work, helping the Trust contribute positively to the wider education community. This outward-facing mindset is central to who we are: we believe strongly in the importance of collaboration and partnership.

We are proud to be a Trust that looks outward, shares its strengths, and invests in the growth of its people. Here, your work extends far beyond your classroom, and your impact does too.

Educating for the Future, Acting in the Present

A Trust Committed to Sustainability, Responsibility and System Leadership

At Hales Valley, we are committed not only to delivering excellent education today, but also to acting responsibly for the future. As part of our contribution to the wider education system, we take seriously our role in responding to sustainability and climate change. Our Sustainability Strategy sets out a clear, ambitious approach built around four key areas: Climate Education, Green Skills and Careers, Education, Estate and Digital Infrastructure, and our wider Operations and Supply Chains.

In practice, this means that sustainability is woven throughout our curriculum and daily school life. Curriculum reviews are planned to ensure climate education and opportunities for pupils to connect with nature are fully embedded across subjects. Every school has an eco-council, and each is progressing on its Eco-Schools “Green Flag” journey, strengthening pupil voice and environmental responsibility. Forest School provision operates across the Trust, and our Farm School principles help children learn about growing produce, seasonality and sustainable living through hands-on experiences.

We also take an active, practical approach to reducing our environmental footprint. Digital platforms are increasingly used to cut unnecessary printing and workload, reducing the use of “paper on paper.” Low-carbon planning guides IT replacement cycles, with old equipment recycled responsibly and energy-efficient options, such as LED lighting and low-carbon boilers, considered as part of our estate work. These actions are complemented by community-facing initiatives, including anti-idling work and tree-planting projects designed to improve local air quality and engage families in sustainability efforts.

As a Trust, we are also building staff knowledge and leadership capacity in this area. Engagement in carbon literacy training and wider recognition programmes supports colleagues in developing the expertise they need to lead confidently on environmental education and sustainable practice.

This work enhances pupils’ learning, improves school environments and demonstrates responsible leadership in action. At Hales Valley, we are proud to champion sustainability as part of our commitment to educating for the future while acting decisively in the present.

Here's what our staff say...

My ten-year career with Hales Valley Trust has been defined by continuous growth, meaningful collaboration, and unwavering support. I began my journey as a teaching assistant, completed my teacher training with the trust and now hold the position of English Leader. At every stage, Hales Valley has encouraged me to develop further and provided the opportunities to make that progression possible.

One of the greatest strengths of the trust is the culture of collaboration. Working closely with teachers and leaders across different schools has broadened my perspective, strengthened my practice, and created a genuine sense of shared purpose. The CPD offer is consistently high quality, thoughtfully designed, and deeply impactful. Through coaching, I have refined my skills and confidence, and I've had the privilege of becoming a coach myself. Supporting others in their professional journeys has been incredibly rewarding and has further strengthened my own leadership.

Hales Valley Trust has shaped my career from its very beginning, and I'm proud to be part of a community that invests so wholeheartedly in its people and their potential.

Ebony Goodman, Lutley Primary School

Working at Hales Valley Trust has particularly supported me in my role as a core subject lead. One of the main benefits is the opportunity to collaborate with other schools within the trust. This has enabled me to receive high-quality CPD from expert teachers and external agencies that I might not otherwise have access to.

It is also valuable to share ideas and resources with teachers across the trust who are teaching the same content. I have a strong network of like-minded teachers that I can reach out to for support if needed. I have also benefited from moderation activities across the trust, which have broadened my knowledge and provided valuable support. This has significantly increased my confidence when delivering lessons and assessing my pupils.

Hannah Bennett, Woodside Primary School

Having spent thirteen years within Hales Valley Trust, progressing from an Early Career Teacher to my current role as Assistant Head of School, I have experienced first-hand the Trust's commitment to professional growth and development. Throughout my journey, I have benefitted from a wide range of high-quality CPD opportunities, including subject leader networks, leadership meetings, moderation support, and whole-Trust INSET days. These opportunities have not only strengthened my classroom practice but have also enabled meaningful collaboration with colleagues across the Trust, creating a strong sense of shared purpose and collective expertise.

A defining strength of Hales Valley Trust is its genuine investment in people at all levels. The Trust's mantra of 'Success for all' is not simply aspirational; it is evident in the decisions made and the structures in place to support staff. The coaching model embedded across the Trust exemplifies this, providing bespoke, reflective coaching and targeted CPD tailored to individual needs. As both a practitioner and a leader, this culture of trust, support and continuous improvement has been instrumental in my professional development and a major reason behind my continued service.

During my career, I have benefitted enormously from the high-quality professional development that sits at the heart of Hales Valley. Professional learning consistently provides purposeful CPD that has directly strengthened my classroom practice underpinned by research-informed approaches that have had an impact on teaching and learning.

Coaching has also been a powerful tool in my development; having regular opportunities to reflect on my practice with a skilled coach has enabled me to refine my teaching, challenge my own thinking and strive to become even better. Collaborative experiences such as team-teaching and paired observations have been invaluable. Being able to watch exemplary practice and share professional dialogue has not only deepened my understanding of effective pedagogy but also fostered a strong culture of trust and openness.

The Trust's commitment to staff growth has provided me with a wide range of opportunities to develop as a leader, progressing from various subject lead roles to becoming a senior leader. Working with colleagues across the Trust has broadened my perspective and strengthened my subject leadership. These experiences have reinforced how supportive, ambitious and collaborative the Hales Valley community is and I feel incredibly proud to have grown both personally and professionally within a Trust that invests so deeply in its people.
