About St George's Business and Economics Department

The Business and Economics Department is a vibrant and thriving area of the school. The department has a very successful record of offering Business and Economics subjects at both GCSE and A Level.

The subjects taught within the department are:

- GCSE Business
- GCSE Economics
- A Level Business
- A Level Economics

The department is a friendly and supportive environment in which to work and whilst it sets high expectations of students all members of the department work hard to ensure students are given the necessary support they need. This is reflected in the strong results the department consistently delivers at both GCSE and A Level.

Extra-Curricular

There are a range of opportunities available to students. The department runs an internal 'Dragons' Den' for Year 9 students and an external 'Young Enterprise' opportunity for Y12 students competing against other schools. In the Sixth Form students have the opportunity to take part in the national 'Young Economist of the Year' competition. An educational trip to Washington and New York is established in the school calendar.

About St George's Business and Economics Department

Departmental Resources

The department is based in newly refurbished area of the school and has three excellent teaching classrooms, all with digital projectors and interactive whiteboards. Students may have timetabled access to classrooms with ICT facilities booked when required.

All students have a relevant textbook provided for their course and there is a wealth of additional resources available to the department staff and students on the school's shared area and VLE. Students are encouraged to supplement their independent study with library resources and independent websites. The library stocks current and past issues of 'Business Review' and 'Economic Review' for those students who decide not to subscribe to the magazines themselves. The library also subscribes to 'Economics Today' as well as 'The Economist' and keeps extended reading files for Business and Economics and a range of business education and economics related books.

About the Role

We are looking for an exceptional and enthusiastic candidate to teach both subjects offered within the department. This is a 1 year fixed term position from September 2026. Part-time hours can be considered for the right candidate.

This post will suit early career teachers, or those considering returning to the profession, who want to join a school offering very high academic standards within a supportive, traditional and disciplined environment.

The successful candidate will join a motivated, successful, highly supportive and hardworking department. We provide a strong mentoring framework for all new staff and actively encourage staff to continue to evaluate and develop their own professional practice.

The successful candidate will possess strong interpersonal skills, great enthusiasm for the subject and the ability to engage and inspire our students. Above all, the right candidate will be passionate about enabling students to achieve their very best, inspiring them through positive role modelling and encouragement.
